Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 15, the 46th day of 2017. There are 319 days left in the year.

ON THIS DATE:

- In 1898, the U.S. battleship Maine mysteriously blew up in Havana Harbor, killing more than 260 crew members and bringing the United States closer to war with Spain.
- In 1942, the British colony Singapore surrendered to Japanese forces during World War II.
- In 1971, Britain and Ireland “decimalised” their currencies, making one pound equal to 100 new pence instead of 240 pence.
- In 1982, 84 men were killed when a huge oil-drilling rig, the Ocean Ranger, sank off the coast of Newfoundland during a fierce storm.
- In 1989, the Soviet Union announced that the last of its troops had left Afghanistan, after more than nine years of military intervention.
- In 2002, a private funeral was held at Windsor Castle for Britain’s Princess Margaret, who had died six days earlier at age 71.

Today’s Highlight in History:

On Feb. 15, 1867, “On the Beautiful Blue Danube,” a waltz by Johann Strauss (the Younger), was publicly performed for the first time by the Vienna Men’s Choral Society, garnering a polite, if decidedly less than enthusiastic, audience response. (A revised orchestral version proved much more successful.)

TEN YEARS AGO

National Guardsmen in Humvees ferried food, fuel and baby supplies to hundreds of motorists stranded for nearly a day on a 50-mile stretch of Interstate 78 in eastern Pennsylvania because of a monster storm. The U.S. Mint unveiled the new presidential $1 coin.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Congressional negotiators sealed an agreement on legislation to renew a payroll tax cut for 160 million workers and jobless benefits for millions more. In defiant swipes at its foes, Iran said it was dramatically closer to mastering the production of nuclear fuel even as the U.S. weighed tougher pressure on the Tehran government.

ONE YEAR AGO

President Barack Obama opened a meeting in Rancho Mirage, California, of leaders from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, calling the landmark gathering on U.S. soil a reflection of his personal commitment to an enduring partnership with the diverse group of countries. Taylor Swift’s “1989” brought the singer her second Grammy Award win for album of the year; Mark Ronson and Bruno Mars earned top record for “Uptown Funk,” while Ed Sheeran won song of the year for “Thinking Out Loud.”

University of New England professor and author Anouar Majid will give a presentation about “Islam and America in a Turbulent World” at the Kennebunk Free Library on March 8.

Presentation about Islam in America

KENNEBUNK — The Kennebunk Free Library will offer a presentation by University of New England professor and author Anouar Majid called “Islam and America in a Turbulent World” next month.

Majid will shed light on the unexamined meaning of Islam in today’s world and discuss how the United States should understand and deal with a powerful religion very few people truly understand during a presentation at the Kennebunk Free Library at 6 p.m. Wednesday, March 8.

In this timely lecture, Majid, a native of Tangier, Morocco, and managing director of UNE’s operations in Morocco, will discuss the relationship between Islam and the West, Islam’s place in the modern world, and how both Americans and Muslims can better understand each other. Majid has spoken frequently about the commonalities between Islam and the West, including an over-emphasis on orthodox beliefs and the importance of fostering conversations and embracing dissent.

Majid is the vice president for global affairs and communications at UNE and the founding director of the Center for Global Humanities and the Tangier Global Forum. The founding chair of UNE’s Department of English, which he headed from 2000 to 2009, Majid conceived and established UNE’s campus in Tangier.

An acclaimed author, he has published widely on the relationship between Islam and the West. He is the author of “Islam and America: Building a Future Without Prejudice;” “We Are All Moors: Ending Centuries of Crusades Against Muslims and Other Minorities;” and “A Call for Heresy: Why Dissent is Vital to Islam and America,” among other works of nonfiction.

Majid also is the author of the novel “Si Yussef,” and his writing has also been published in Cultural Critique, Signs, The Chronicle of Higher Education, the Washington Post, and other publications. Majid is the editor of Tingis (tingismagazine.com), a free online magazine dedicated to a new reading of Islam and its traditions.

This program is free and wheelchair accessible.

The Kennebunk Free Library is at 112 Main St. in Kennebunk, Maine.
