REFLECTIONS

THIS SEASON IS A TIME FOR REFLECTION. RECOGNIZING ACCOMPLISHMENTS AND EXPRESSING GRATITUDE. AND LOOKING FORWARD TO THE YEAR AHEAD.

s I reflect upon 2010, I am particularly grateful for the many achievements of our students, faculty, and the university. We are making significant progress toward our Vision 2017 strategic plan goals.

UNE's enrollment is now over 6,800, with more students transferring into the university than ever before. Our incoming student body, both undergrads and grads, now represent 26 states and 12 countries. UNE welcomed 698 incoming freshman students (a 10.6 percent increase) and 153 transfer students (the fifth consecutive year of growth) onto our campuses this fall. We have never had more support across UNE for our students. Each of our daily interactions - around campus and in the classroom - reinforces the very special place that UNE is.

We were honored to host Lieutenant General Brent Scowcroft (Retired) and President and Mrs. George H.W. Bush at UNE in September for the inaugural George and Barbara Bush Distinguished Lecture Series. Gen. Scowcroft shared his "Reflections on the End of the Cold War" as the keynote speaker for the event, which was simulcast to the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University.

Our College of Pharmacy was granted accreditation candidate status this fall, and we recruited an outstanding new dean, Gayle A. Brazeau, and other notable faculty. Our pharmaceutical sciences research program generates about $600,000 per year in extramural funding, already placing this college at the 50th percentile of all research-funded programs. This is a remarkable achievement after only one year!

UNE is becoming a truly global university. This year we established the position of Associate Provost for Global Initiatives and are partnering with institutions around the world to expand educational opportunities for our students. UNE students have traveled to Ghana, Brazil, Kenya, and Peru.

Our students are raving about the $26 million campus expansion in Biddeford that includes our beautiful new 300-bed Sokokis Residence Hall and a state-of-the-art synthetic blue turf field for our athletic teams. UNE remains the Conference leader in athlete-scholars, and our teams continue to win championships! Our women's field hockey team won the 2010 The Commonwealth Coast Conference championship and made it to the NCAA Division III Championship for the first time this fall.

Our commitment to sustainable business practices has strengthened. This fall UNE received $250,000 in grants to help reduce our carbon footprint, and we will soon install solar panels and other building and energy management upgrades on campus.

The Dental Access Bond on the Maine ballot passed in November, presenting UNE with an opportunity to expand our leadership in the health sciences with a College of Dental Medicine. With the passage of the Bond and continued fundraising, we hope to enter our first class in 2012.

These are just a few highlights from 2010. As we enter the new year, I am very grateful for the university's many accomplishments, and extend my sincere appreciation to you our alumni, supporters and friends, as well as faculty, staff and Board of Trustees — for your continued support.

CAMPUS LIFE

EXPANDED FOOTPRINT IS A BIG STEP FORWARD TO BUILDING COMMUNITY ON CAMPUS

ichael Sang just finished longboarding from one side of the Biddeford Campus to another headed for his residence hall. Every minute counts when balancing classes, work and extracurricular activities. "I did it in under-two minutes," he says proudly. "It would take me six minutes to walk," said the junior medical biology major from Guilford, Connecticut.

By the time undergraduate students returned in late August to the Biddeford Campus, it had been expanded across Pool Street to include a new residence hall with a capacity for 300 students, and an athletic field featuring blue synthetic turf, called the Big Blue Turf Field.

Sang is one of the upperclassman students successful in getting his first choice of living arrangements for the year through a housing selection process held each spring. The new residence hall, named Sokokis for the Native Americans who originally inhabited land in the Saco River Valley, includes two types of suites: some with four single bedrooms and others with two single bedrooms and a double.

At home in Sokokis

At left: UNE students Michael Sang, Patrick Burnham, Kyle Cornell and Anda Panaitiu enjoy the new amenities and location of Sokokis Hall. All the suites at Sokokis have kitchenettes, living rooms and spacious bathrooms. Each floor has two study areas, while the ground floor includes a lounge and a fitness area. WiFi is accessible throughout the building.

The new hall is the fifth suitestyle hall built at UNE in the last decade. A total of 1,372 students are housed in residence halls on the Biddeford Campus.

"A vibrant residential community is important to our students," said Dean of Students Daryl Conte. "It provides them with the opportunity to immerse in the campus culture and connect with faculty, staff and services."

Anda Panaitiu is a senior from Romania who has truly found her 'home away from home' at Sokokis where she serves as a resident advisor. She enjoys the setting of the new residence hall near a wooded area, where she can "step back and have tranquility" with a view of a pond from her room. Though the hall is removed from the busier areas of campus, she said it is closer to her academic buildings where she studies neuroscience and biochemistry.

Roommates Patrick Burnham, a junior from Gardiner, Maine, and Kyle Cornell, a junior from Plaistow, New Hampshire, were thrilled to be among the first students living at Sokokis, thanks to Kyle being assigned a low number in the housing selection process last year. They appreciate the individual rooms in their suite and the new setting.

Burnham who is majoring in marine biology with a minor in environmental studies, said, "My favorite part is the distance, the quiet and not being right in the middle of campus." He still manages to be involved in many extracurricular activities including serving as president of a social awareness club and participating in martial arts. With his advocacy work for environmental issues through student council and clubs, he appreciates its energy efficient design.

Cornell is majoring in medical biology with a minor in biology. He said though he misses being closer to the riverfront as someone who is very involved in outdoor recreation, his new residence hall more than makes up for it with amenities like large study areas and a location closer to his classes and labs, including the Creative and Fine Arts building. He also appreciates the proximity to the new turf field where he plays ultimate Frisbee, one of two new intramural programs created this year.

Students from the entire campus are benefiting from the new turf field. In addition to ultimate Frisbee, intramural field hockey and an expanded intramural soccer program have been added due to the greater capacity. And this is bringing students closer together with a higher participation in intramural sports and higher attendance at varsity sports.

"A vibrant residential community is important to our students. It provides them with the opportunity to immerse in the campus culture and connect with faculty, staff and services."

Daryl ConteDean of Students

In the fall, the field hockey team hosted 10 home games with an average of 150 spectators per match, an increase over last season's attendance figures, according to Director of Athletics Kim Allen.

By the end of October in the 2010-2011 school year 58 intramural games with 232 student participants had already occurred, according to Patty Williams, coordinator of intramural and recreational sports.

The expanded campus will welcome even more students in the future. Sokokis is the first of four planned residence halls that will eventually surround the new pond and green, bordered by a quarter-mile running/walking trail. The green will provide space for social activities such as barbecues, as well as intramural and informal recreational sports and activities. In winter the pond will be turned into an ice skating rink.

When UNE's Nor'easters defeated the University of Southern Maine with a 5-4 win on September 1, not only did it signify the opening of the 2010 field hockey season, it also ushered in a dawn of a new era in UNE Athletics. That contest was the first played on the Big Blue Turf – or BBT as it has become affectionately known – a beautiful facility featuring a state-of-the-art synthetic turf surface, lighting for night games and practices, bleacher seating for more than 500 spectators, a large scoreboard, and top-rated press box.

The field was officially christened by President Danielle Ripich on September 7 when the field hockey team hosted Framingham State University before a standing-room only crowd of nearly 600. In addition to its usage by the field hockey team, the field has allowed the soccer teams to train on the surface in inclement weather, and will be the home for the men's and women's lacrosse programs in the spring.

And, of course, the color of the surface has been a topic of conversation. Portland's WMTW TV8 did a segment on the field in September, and it has been featured in stories in the Portland Press Herald and Journal Tribune. UNE's Big Blue Turf is one of only three blue synthetic turf fields in collegiate athletics, joining Boise State University and the University of New Haven.

The facility has received rave reviews.

"The BBT is the best thing that has

"The BBT is the best thing that has happened to the field hockey program thus far," said co-captain Ayla Nelson '11. "It makes the game faster and provides new challenges for the team to master. The blue turf is an addition that will help the future of the field hockey program here at UNE."

Teammate and fellow co-captain Michaela Franey '11 agreed. "Playing on the turf, I feel has improved our play immensely. We play a passing game and the turf allows us to be quicker and smoother when passing the ball. I feel it's a huge home-field advantage. We really connect as a team and play together on this turf. It has changed our game a lot, but for the better."

UNE's growing intramural and club sports programs have already reaped the benefits of the Big Blue Turf, with the club rugby team holding practices along with intramural soccer and ultimate Frisbee games.

Coordinator of Intramurals Patty Williams recognizes the positive impact the new facility is having on her program.

"The addition of the Big Blue Turf has alleviated many of the challenges of scheduling recreational activity space for the intramural and club sport programs," said Williams. "Students can now participate on a state-of-the-art field, which can be used during prime time because of the lights, as well as during wet weather conditions. Intramural participants are really enjoying themselves on the new field."

he Center for Community and Public Health (CCPH) at UNE, the Ghana Health Service, the University of Cape Coast (of Ghana), and several U.S. based health organizations have launched the Ghana Health Partnership to improve the health of the population of western Ghana.

"We will work with colleagues in the partnership to identify, plan and evaluate innovations designed to improve health services in Ghana," said Dr. Ron Deprez, director of the Center for Community and Public Health. CCPH conducts research, demonstration and planning studies throughout the U.S. and abroad and also houses public health training and educational programs including the Graduate Program in Public Health. In addition the partnership will provide research and educational exchange opportunities for student and faculty from member institutions.

One area among several that the partnership will address is Ghana's progress toward meeting United Nations Millennium Development Goals in Maternal and Child Health. According to Dr. Linda Vanotoo, regional director of the Western Region, Ghana Health Service, and a member of the Partnership, "Maternal and child health outcomes such as infant mortality have not changed in 10 years."

During the celebration week, members of the UNE Community and general public were invited to hear presentations by: Dr. Kofi Awusabo-Asare, professor at the University of Cape Coast, Ghana on, "Education and Research at University of Cape Coast as it relates to the Ghana Health Partnership"; Dr. Vanotoo, on "Maternal Child Morbidity and Mortality in the Western/Central Regions of Ghana"; and Dr. Ahmed Adu-Oppong, also a professor at the University of Cape Coast on, "Community-Based Experience and Services: A strategy to improve health care capacity and advance."

Also during the week, an event cosponsored by UNE's Interprofessional Education Collaborative (IPEC) featured a student and faculty presentation of their Ghana transcultural immersion experience based on missions from March and August 2010. And Dr. Jennie Ward-Robinson, director of the Institute for Public Health Water Research gave a presentation on, "Water, Hygiene and Sanitation in the Developing World: Where are we?"

Ghana Health Mission

Since 2008, UNE has organized health missions to Ghana with student health professionals from UNE and other schools. The Ghana Health Mission was founded in 1996 by Dr. Leda McKenry, at left above, at the University of Massachusetts. It was brought to UNE by Dr. Jennifer Morton, at right above, of the Westbrook College of Health Professions. Since 2008, Dr. Morton has organized four UNE missions, including interprofessional teams of health professionals of students and faculty.

In an event co-sponsored by UNE's Office of Multicultural Affairs, participants were treated to a demonstration of West African drumming by Theo Martey, director and leader of the Akwaaba Dance/Drumming Ensemble, a talented artist who was born and raised in Accra Ghana, West Africa.

Reflections on the Cold War

RETIRED GENERAL BRENT SCOWCROFT DELIVERS INAUGURAL GEORGE AND BARBARA BUSH DISTINGUISHED LECTURE

By Kathleen Taggersell

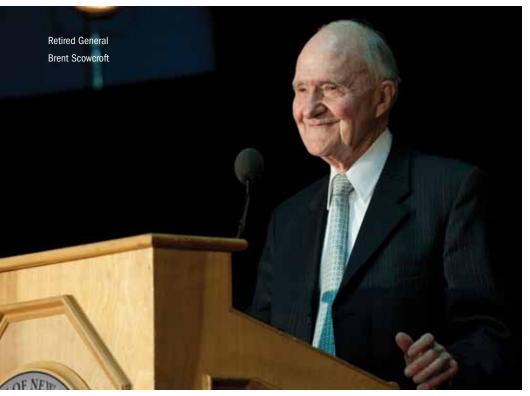

NE welcomed former National Security Advisor Lieutenant General Brent Scowcroft as the keynote speaker at the inaugural George and Barbara Bush Distinguished Lecture Series, a newly instituted annual UNE event honoring the legacy of President and Mrs. Bush as political and community leaders, on September 24.

UNE was also honored to host former President George H.W. Bush and First Lady Barbara Bush, as well as former Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and former Ambassador to France and the Czech Republic Craig Roberts Stapleton, who attended the lecture under the Riverview Tent on UNE's Biddeford Campus. General Scowcroft's topic was "Reflections on the End of the Cold War."

General Scowcroft was instrumental in the 1989–1990 negotiations among the administrations of U.S. President George H. W. Bush, German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, and Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev that resulted in one of the most important historical events of the 20th century: the peaceful reunification of East and West Germany.

General Scowcroft's engaging personal reflections were also simulcast to students and faculty at the Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M. UNE President Danielle Ripich stated, "The enduring relationship of President and Mrs. Bush with our beautiful coast of Maine and with the University of New England has been solidified with this academic linkage to Texas." In his remarks, General Scowcroft added, "These are the kinds of things that modern education can do for us which enrich the experience of both parties."

Brent Scowcroft served as the National Security Advisor to both Presidents Gerald Ford and George H.W. Bush. In lauding George H.W. Bush's foreign policy strategy, Scowcroft cited his statesmanship and said, "...the end of the Cold War, without a shot being fired, is an anomaly in world history."

Watch a video of General Scowcroft's lecture on UNE's website at www.une.edu.

The Berlin Wall

An Interactive Exhibition

This interactive exhibition provides a concise and engaging overview of the historical evolution of the wall dividing East Berlin from West Berlin: from its creation in August of 1961 to its demolition in October of 1989 and beyond.

With just the touch of a finger on an iPad – and a major behind-the-scenes collaboration of creative minds and technology – the history of the Berlin Wall is alive through a special interactive exhibition at UNE's George and Barbara Bush Center Gallery. The exhibition opened in conjunction with the inaugural Bush Distinguished Lecture on September 24.

The project is the result of a collaboration led by the UNE Department of History, supported by the UNE Library Services' Department of Special Collections and the UNE Office of Communications.

The exhibition includes a compelling gallery display in conjunction with an interactive digital display. Using touch screen technology on iPads, visitors can access a wealth of in-depth resources while in the Gallery, and instantly learn more about individual elements of the displays they see in front of them.

The exhibition at the Bush Gallery on UNE's Biddeford Campus runs through December 21 and is free and open to the public.

Connections. For Life.

A Legacy Remembered

We take great pride in honoring the lasting connections of UNE's heritage, as reflected in the following letter to UNE President Danielle Ripich (reprinted with permission).

To the President of the University of New England,

Last week, while in Maine, I looked for the tombstones of my great-uncles Arthur and Zenon Decary, founders of Saint-Francis College. After searching for two days, I finally found their graves in front of Decary Hall on your Biddeford campus. I was overjoyed when I saw how well they were remembered. Your staff also directed me to the Heritage Plaza adjoining the Library and referred me to the page devoted to them on your website.

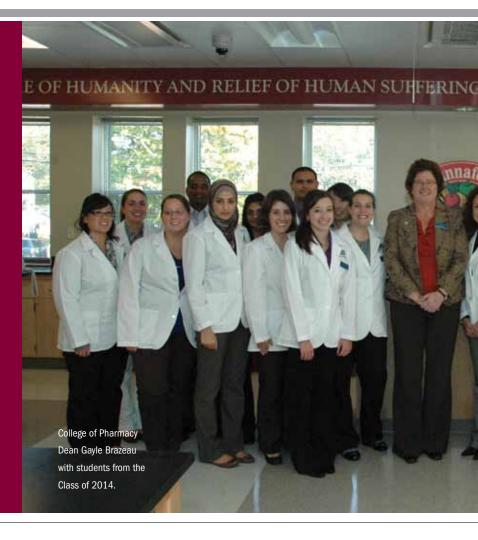

On behalf of all the Decary family I wish to thank you very sincerely for the care and attention that UNE has shown my great-uncles' grave site.

Sincerely,

Philip Oneson Son of Mathilde Decary Daughter of Avila Decary (Brother of Arthur and Zenon)

r. Gayle Brazeau is very happy to be at UNE and she wears her pride on her collar.

"I will wear this every day," said the new College of Pharmacy dean pointing to her UNE pin given to her by President Danielle Ripich. It is symbolic of her commitment to her new leadership role and the responsibilities she takes seriously to foster the success of her students, faculty and staff.

Prior to her arrival at UNE on September 1, she served as professor of pharmacy practice and the associate dean of academic affairs in the School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences at the University of Buffalo, State University of New York where she earned her Ph.D. in Pharmaceutics in 1989. She received a B.S. in Pharmacy and M.S. in Pharmaceutical Sciences from the University of Toledo.

She is already known for her high energy (not remaining seated for a good part of this interview), serving as one of three associate editors for the American Journal of Pharmaceutical Education, and on several editorial advisory boards for other scientific journals. She has also served as an elected officer, committee member and committee chair for numerous scientific and professional organizations including the chair of the Council of Faculties for the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy (AACP).

Prior to the University of Buffalo, she was a faculty member at the University of Houston and the University of Florida, and is a recipient of teaching and student recognition awards at all three universities.

Though she points out that she does not have children of her own, it is clear that her devotion to students runs deep. One of her favorite moments at UNE so far was having the opportunity to greet freshman students on the Biddeford campus as they arrived for the school year with their parents.

She is grateful to her predecessors – Dr. John Cormier and Dr. Douglas Kay – who built a solid foundation for the college including the inaugural and following classes of students, faculty, and a new state-of-the-art building on the Portland Campus.

"It is a very impressive group of students, faculty and staff," said Dean Brazeau, who defined her priorities as staying on track for accreditation status (with the graduation of the first class), supporting the expansion of the "One of the benefits of hiring one of our graduates is they will be considered valued members of an interprofessional medical team and that is a unique educational experience they can have at UNE..."

research enterprise, and further defining what it means to be a graduate UNE's College of Pharmacy – the competitive edge they will have over graduates of other schools.

Working with students and faculty to define the attributes of UNE College of Pharmacy graduates, she has already identified one major asset they will have.

"One of the benefits of hiring one of our graduates is they will be considered valued members of an interprofessional medical team and that is a unique educational experience they can have at UNE that is in the best interest of the patients they will be serving," said Dean Brazeau.

Her husband, Dr. Daniel Brazeau, will be joining the faculty of UNE's College of Arts & Sciences in January after he fulfills a commitment as a research associate professor in pharmaceutical sciences at the University of Buffalo.

She and her husband have been together for 31 years and are impressed with the culture and community of UNE and the state. As avid college sports fans, it's likely they will be found cheering on the sports teams from the sidelines. No need for them to buy a lot of new clothes in the school colors, since the UB Bulls and the Nor'easters are both blue.

It's clear the Brazeau family, including their two dogs – a chocolate lab named Morgan and a yellow lab named Luke – have found a new home in Maine.

LEAD TO BIG LEAPS IN SUSTAINABILITY EFFORTS AT UNE

By Kathleen Taggersell

Teaching environmental stewardship has always been an integral part of a UNE education. Over the last several years, UNE's commitment to creating a cleaner, healthier environment has become more visible than ever.

ikes on campus, single-sort recycling, battery and ink cartridge collection sites, and LEED buildings are just a few of the noticeable steps UNE has taken toward reducing its carbon footprint – led by sustainability coordinator Alethea Cariddi, with the involvement and support of many UNE students, faculty and staff.

The university's sustainability efforts received a huge boost in September, when UNE was awarded three grants totaling more than $238,000 to make additional energy improvements on the Biddeford Campus.

The grants will be administered by the Maine Public Utilities Commissions Energy Programs Division, known as Efficiency Maine, and include $154,160 for building automation and energy management upgrades for greenhouse gas reductions; $50,000 for a solar hot water system and a performance monitoring display at the Campus Center; and $34,347 for parking lot LED lights to reduce energy consumption and cost.

Cariddi and several work/study students in the UNE Sustainability Office collaborated to submit the grant applications, and their efforts paid off. Says Cariddi, "These three grants are a major step forward in UNE's commitment to becoming carbon neutral. I am thrilled that in less than two years, we have made measurable and positive progress toward that goal."

One student involved in the grant success is environmental studies major Nicholas Cornetta,'12. As recycling assistant and sustainability researcher, Nick has worked on emissions reports and installation of the single-sort recycling program at UNE. About the university's commitment to reducing its carbon footprint, Nick says, "These are fantastic goals that I believe UNE will someday achieve.

Though the steps may be small at first, they accomplish the most important part of teaching a new way of thinking, setting a green standard so that progress can gain momentum."

Senior Chelsea Amaio, an environmental studies major who has been involved with UNE's sustainability efforts since 2006, agrees: "Being a part of UNE's sustainability transformation has taught me that small, seemingly insignificant improvements can add up to a shift in general mindsets of environmental awareness. Looking back, I can confidently say UNE is a much greener school than when I started here, and it is extremely rewarding to have been a part of the progression."

Cariddi is currently drafting a Climate Action Plan for the university, which will incorporate behavioral change and energy efficiency to reduce energy consumption, include potential renewable energy projects and outline a portfolio of offsets that are both fiscally responsible and environmentally meaningful. This document will help steer the university in its pursuit of climate neutrality.

Ryan Kingston, '12, president of the Earth's E.C.O. (Environmentally Conscious Organization) club, has worked to raise awareness of environmental issues at UNE through events like 350 Day and Reduce, Reuse, Rockout. He says his own thinking has evolved from "let's save the planet ideals...to how can we do it in a reasonable, responsible way. I've noticed that being environmentally responsible usually goes hand in hand with being fiscally responsible."

Kingston has seen changes in other students' behavior, too: "I've noticed more plastics being recycled now, and more bottles and cans have been redeemed this month than at the same time last year. I've seen some students also just taking the initiative to turn off their lights and using CFL bulbs."

"The recycling program is a visible and tactile way that each member of the UNE community can contribute to the environmental sustainability of the university," says Cariddi. "Expanding the recycling program to capture additional materials was an answer to many requests from students, faculty and staff."

Kingston was in the first class to participate in UNE's alternative transportation program in 2008. He says, "I received a free bike two years ago for not bringing my car to campus, and I still use it today. It's very useful for running around campus checking recycling stations and dumpsters ... I also use it to head down to Biddeford every once in a while. I've also used the shuttle to get to the train station and downtown, so it's been beneficial."

The collective benefits of these many small steps can last a lifetime. Says Amaio: "What is so special about UNE is the majority of students major in nonenvironmental fields, yet we're working toward reducing our carbon footprint with strong student and administrative support. This shows that sustainability is perceived as more than an environmental interest. UNE is showing that sustainable living is a lifestyle choice everyone can choose no matter what their career interests are."

ONE OF THE UNIQUE THINGS ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY OF NEW ENGLAND IS ITS LOCATION RIGHT AT THE MOUTH OF THE SACO RIVER. THE SACO BEGINS IN THE WHITE MOUNTAINS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE AND EMPTIES INTO THE GULF OF MAINE JUST BEYOND CAMPUS. FROM THE MOUTH OF THE RIVER UP TO THE FIRST DAM, THE TIDE MIXES SALT WATER WITH FRESH.

his part of the river is the Saco River estuary, and it is the focus of a UNE research project aimed at sustaining the health of the estuary into the future.

The research is made possible by an EPSCoR (Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research) grant titled "Sustaining Quality of Place in the Saco River Estuary through Community Based Ecosystem Management."

With this grant, a team of UNE researchers and undergraduate students is studying the ecology of the estuary as well as the policies, regulations and economics that influence this portion of the river. Faculty from the departments of Environmental Studies, Biological Sciences, Business Administration and Marine Science, together with the research director from the nearby Wells Estuarine Research Reserve, have come together to collaborate on this project.

"So many undergraduate students are gaining first-hand experience in all of these areas as we tackle a complex issue like the sustainability of the estuary in UNE's backyard."

"A really exciting part of this project is that it involves faculty from so many disciplines, from ecology to economics to social sciences, and that so many undergraduate students are gaining first-hand experience in all of these areas as we tackle a complex issue like the sustainability of the estuary in UNE's backyard."

The project is focused on understanding the effects of increasing coastal development and other impacts such as invasive species and sea level rise on the health of the Saco River Estuary. It is employing the methods of social sciences in understanding management and policy challenges, and in examining existing gaps in scientific knowledge required to address these challenges.

It is also using the methods of the natural sciences to develop ecological and socioeconomic indicators that reflect the health of the estuary. This project is a first step in achieving the long-term goal of sustaining the structure and function of the Saco River Estuary, and could serve as a model for bringing scientists and stakeholders together to achieve similar goals.

The first year of the project began with gathering information from the people who use and manage the river through interviews, workshops and public information sessions. At the workshops, UNE students presented information on issues such as climate change, water quality, biodiversity, wetlands, and ecosystem services. Community members engaged in lively debate about important values and brainstormed strategies to maintain fish populations, balance coastal development, and protect healthy beaches to support a vibrant economy. This stakeholder analysis is helping to determine what the community values, and is informing research efforts.

Students are working on all aspects of the project, in courses such as Ecosystem Management and Environmental Communication, and as research assistants gathering stakeholder input, analyzing the economic value of the estuary, and doing field work studying the marshes that line the river as well as the fish and birds that spend time there. During this past summer's field season, students donned rubber boots, binoculars and sunscreen to travel throughout the estuary collecting ecological data.

"Our hope is that the work we are doing can have lasting impacts not only on the health of the Saco River estuary and the organisms that live there, but also on the current and future generations of people who live, work and recreate in this part of the coast."

Below: Stakeholders and researchers tour the Saco River Estuary to exchange ideas.

Physician Assistant program receives $990,000 grant

The Westbrook College of Health Professions physician assistant program – the only one in the state – has been awarded a Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) Affordable Care Act Grant totaling $990,000.

George Bottomley

The goal of the "Expansion of Physician Assistant Training Program Grant" is to meet the primary care shortages that are facing Maine and the rest of the nation. The grant will provide $22,000 in annual tuition reimbursement to each of five additional students accepted into the program each year for the five-year length of the grant. Awards will be made to individual students who apply and demonstrate a commitment to practice in an area of primary care in the state of Maine.

The principle investigator of the grant, Dr. George Bottomley, director of UNE's Physician Assistant Program, has partnered with the Penobscot Community Health Center and St. Joseph Hospital system in Bangor to create a unique clinical training experience. Funded students will receive the first 12-month didactic training of their 24-month master's level program at UNE's Portland campus, then relocate to Bangor for a 12-month immersion experience in primary care for the underserved.

AHEC funded to alleviate work force shortages

UNE HAS BEEN AWARDED a two-year continuation grant from the federal Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) to support the Maine Area Health Education Center (AHEC) Network.

UNE honored with economic development award

PRESIDENT DANIELLE RIPICH on

Sept. 16 accepted the 2010 Robert R. Masterton Award for Economic Development on behalf of the University at the Portland Regional Chamber of Commerce's 156th annual dinner and community awards ceremony.

More than 500 people attended the event at the Holiday Inn by the Bay.

In accepting the award, President Ripich said these are exciting times for the university, which has established a new College of Pharmacy in Portland and plans to open a College of Dental Medicine in Portland in 2012. President Ripich stated, "My vision for the College of Pharmacy was to be in the top 25 percent of U.S. schools in federal research funding. I expected this would take five to seven years. And now, just a little over a year since opening, the College is ranked in the top half of all Colleges of Pharmacy in federal research dollars. We're bringing federal dollars to Maine; we're beginning to generate contracts with companies in Maine and the region for services; and we're educating badly needed pharmacists right here in Portland."

President Ripich said receiving the award was even more special since former UNE Board of Trustees chair Paul "P.D." Merrill had previously received the award.

The 2nd Annual Donna M. Loring Lecture

NATIVE ELDER ISABELLE KNOCKWOOD

gave a personal account of a residential school experience and the effects of Canadian Prime Minister Stephen Harper's apology many years later at the UNE Maine Women Writers Collection Donna M. Loring Lecture held on Oct. 12 on the Biddeford Campus.

The lecture, titled "Out of the Depths" was cosponsored by the Office of Multicultural Affairs and Diversity Programs, Department of English and Language Studies, and Women's and Gender Studies Program.

From the late 1800s through well into the 20th century, First Nations children in Canada (like those in the U.S.) were forced or coerced into attending residential schools, whose purpose was to eradicate indigenous culture.

The myriad abuses perpetrated at these bleak institutions were only acknowledged in 2008, when Canadian Prime Minster Stephen Harper issued an official apology to the residential school survivors on behalf of Canada and all Canadians.

Ms. Knockwood, a revered tribal elder of the Mi'kmaq Nation, attended the Indian Residential School in Shubenacadie, Nova Scotia, from 1936 to 1947. She took the audience on a guided tour through the experience of residential schooling, and addressed the question of how Stephen Harper's apology affected the survivors of the Shubenacadie residential school.

MTI awards College of Pharmacy

John V. Schloss

The Maine Technology Institute awarded $480,000 from its Cluster Initiative Program (CIP) to UNE for a collaborative project designed to attract new biotech ventures, support Maine-based companies, and stimulate new federallyfunded research.

UNE received the award, matched by $678,000, for its College of Pharmacy to collaborate with the Maine Medical Center Research Institute and the City of Portland's Division of Economic Development to complete its Portland facility dedicated to bridging basic research and the clinical development of drugs and medical devices

The CIP program supports collaborative projects that boost Maine's high-potential technology-intensive clusters. Awards made under the CIP program support the success of Maine businesses by funding the joint work of companies, service providers, research laboratories and educational institutions and expanding the infrastructure that helps them to thrive.

Dr. John V. Schloss, professor and chair of UNE's Pharmaceutical Sciences said, "This award strengthens an ongoing collaboration between UNE, Maine Medical Center Research Institute, the University of Southern Maine, and the City of Portland, providing important technology and infrastructure critical for the development of a biotechnology cluster. It will establish a Core for Drug Analysis and Development (CDAD) which is not just the best facility for molecular analysis in Maine, but one of the most advanced and comprehensive facilities of its type anywhere. CDAD will attract new biotech ventures, support Maine-based companies, and stimulate new federally-funded research."

Nor'easters Storm to TCCC Title

A season after winning the ECAC New England Championship, the field hockey team did one better, capturing the 2010 The Commonwealth Coast Conference Championship.

First-year head coach Jane Hurt orchestrated a remarkable post-season run, as the third-seeded Nor'easters knocked off second-seeded Nichols in the semifinal round and top-seeded New England College in the title game. UNE dominated NEC in the championship game, shutting out the Pilgrims, 3-0, while racking up a 27-5 advantage in shots. During the regular season, Big Blue had suffered a 3-1 setback to NEC.

By virtue of its title, the team earned its first NCAA National Championship appearance and a trip to The College of New Jersey.

"I'm so proud of the team," Hurt said after the championship game. "They've worked so hard this season – having to adjust to a new system, and the new turf – it makes this accomplishment so much sweeter. It's really a testament to last year's squad and how this program has been built."

Hannah Tavella '14 was voted TCCC

Ernest Therrien

Submitted by Joseph Valenza, Class of 1968, St. Francis College. Professor Therrien passed away in June 2010.

Professor Ernest Therrien was not only a professor of economics at St. Francis College, he was also a mentor, counselor and, to use a term that has come into vogue in recent years, a life coach. I didn't know he filled this other role when I was attending St. Francis College, but I know it now. I clearly remember one instance when, I now realize, he simultaneously and effortlessly was all these for me. I was taking macroeconomics my junior year at St. Francis College, and although Professor Therrien was not teaching this course, he was willing to discuss this subject as well as other subjects with any of us. At the time I was intrigued with the many graphical representations of microeconomics concepts. One day I asked Professor Therrien about the meaning or significance of the intersections of particular points if a graph of the production possibility curve—one microeconomics concept—were to be imposed on a graph representing indifference curves—another microeconomics concept. In a most gentle fashion, Professor Therrien suggested I look instead at another set of intersection points on the combined production possibility and indifference curve graph. He seemed to proudly listen as I proceeded to articulate the significance of those intersection points he highlighted for me. And then as I was leaving his office he said, "Keep thinking, Joe." That was a valuable lesson back then, and is still a valuable lesson for me today.

IN MEMORIAM

PETER MORGANE Ph.D.

he UNE Community lost a dear friend and colleague, Dr. Peter Morgane, who died September 27, 2010 after a brief illness.

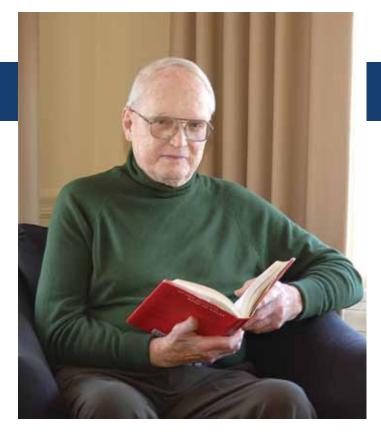

President Danielle Ripich said, "We mourn the loss of our dear friend, but know that Peter's legacy of scientific discovery will live on at the University of New England. Dr. Morgane has been one of the University's greatest supporters. The newest academic building on UNE's Biddeford Campus, Peter and Cécile Morgane Hall, is named in his honor. In addition, Dr. Morgane planted the seeds for future generations of researchers through his establishment of the Cécile Morgane Research Laboratories at the Pickus Center for Biomedical Research."

Dr. Morgane was an accomplished researcher and professor of pharmacology at UNE's College of Osteopathic Medicine. He was also a man of great vision and generosity. He joined the university in 1985, and dedicated his entire career to advancing the body of biomedical research knowledge, and sharing his research passion with others. Dr. Morgane was widely respected for his research on the limbic system, sleep physiology, and neural regulation of energy balance, and published hundreds of peer-reviewed articles in his lifetime.

Dr. David Mokler, a professor of pharmacology who began working at UNE in 1986, said Dr. Morgane was "a mentor, a colleague, and a close personal friend."

Together, Dr. Morgane and Mokler conducted extensive research examining how the brain works. Some of their most recent work included experimenting with rats to determine how protein malnutrition during pregnancy can affect brain development and produce permanent changes in behavior.

Through his lifelong commitment to research, Dr. Morgane produced groundbreaking work on the limbic system, which is considered the "emotional and motivational part of the brain," Mokler said.

Drs. Morgane and Mokler sponsored a symposium on the limbic system in the spring that included scientists from Harvard University, Boston University and the University of New Hampshire, as well as from UNE.

"We had a great time doing research," Mokler said.

Dr. Morgane's work spanned more than 50 years, and Mokler said, "He always seemed to know the history of everything about neuroscience. He knew and worked with some of the greatest neuroscientists."

Dr. Ed Bilsky, a professor in the College of Osteopathic Medicine and director of the Center for Excellence in the Neurosciences said, "In his over 50 years as a scientist, Dr. Morgane made seminal contributions to the fields of comparative neuroanatomy and developmental biology. He earned an international reputation defining the form and function of the limbic system and the role it plays in emotion, learning and memory, and higher cognitive function. As a benefactor to the university we owe him an enormous debt of gratitude."

The UNE College of Osteopathic Medicine is planning a lecture and reception to honor Dr. Morgane's legacy in 2011. Please check the UNE online events calendar at www.une.edu where information will be posted when available.

ANNUAL REPORT of PHILANTHROPY

This is the time of year to reflect on all that we have and to appreciate the wonderful UNE community that includes alumni, students, parents, faculty, corporations and foundations that have generously supported us through the years, and Fiscal Year 2009–2010 was no exception.

In spite of an economy that continues to be challenging, more than 2,480 donors contributed $3,314,945. The UNE Annual Fund, which supports all areas of the University, raised $690,000, a four percent increase from last year thanks to the generosity of alumni, parents, friends and community members.

We are also grateful to our friends in the Heritage Society – which has grown to more than 200 members – who have established planned gifts to support the work of dedicated faculty and talented students. Their legacy will forever be connected with UNE's success.

I would like to thank the following individuals and organizations in particular for their leadership gifts and grants this year: the New Hampshire Endowment for Health for their $150,000 gift on behalf of clinical planning and student recruitment for the College of Dental Medicine, Unum for their $250,000 gift to build a Special Care Clinic within the College of Dental Medicine clinical facility; the estate of Dr. Francis Wetmore for the Wetmore Endowment of $152,000 to support UNE's library; Peter and Raquel Boehmer for their gift of $500,000; and the Davis Educational Foundation for their $100,000 grant to integrate effective writing instruction into the undergraduate core curriculum.

Thank you so much for your generosity and for helping to foster an educational environment of excellence and innovation in health professions and the arts and sciences.

Danielle N. Ripich, Ph.D.

President

2009–2010 Annual Report of Philanthropy

The 2009–2010 Annual Report of Philanthropy reflects gifts received June 1, 2009 through May 31, 2010. If you have made a gift after May 31, 2010 it will appear in the 2010–2011 report to be published in the fall/winter of 2011.

donates x-ray machine to Marine Science Center

"Being given the opportunity to work on the functional abilities of a harbor porpoise and apply clinical knowledge across the species spectrum is the ultimate interdisciplinary experience. It has allowed the physical therapy department at UNE to work in collaboration with the Marine Science Center and was a valuable way for students to work together to manage a uniquely challenging, but extremely rewarding case study. Plus it was just neat to meet and become close with a sea creature who you can help!"

2009–2010 Deborah Morton Society Scholarship Recipient

Margery Feinburg Cooper WJC'69

The Deborah Morton Endowed Scholarship was established in 1974 through donations collected by members of the Deborah Morton Society. Deborah Morton was a Westbrook Seminary Alumna of the Class of 1875 and a gifted educator and civic leader. Morton served on the faculty and administration of Westbrook Seminary for over 50 years. While the scholarship is endowed, the Deborah Morton Society – a group of Maine women who have received the University of New England's Deborah Morton Award – raise money in support of expanding the fund's corpus each year. The scholarship is awarded with preference given to a Maine resident and Portland Campus student who demonstrates outstanding qualities of character and leadership.

"It is with the deepest gratitude and honor for me to have been given this scholarship to help me continue in my studies in the nursing program here at UNE. I thank the scholarship committee and also those responsible for my nomination from the bottom of my heart."

Heritage Society Members

Many alumni and friends of the University have expressed their unsurpassed loyalty by including the University in their estate and financial plans. Over the last 30 years, since Westbrook College founded the Heritage Society back in the early 1980s, and St. Francis and College of Osteopathic Medicine graduates did the same for their alma mater, planned gifts have provided invaluable support for the institution in a myriad of ways. The legacy planned gifts created are truly inspiring and the impact on the institution and students is amazing.

Grace Perry RN 2010

Grace Perry, RN '10, worked daily in Ghana with a two-year old burn victim. After days of tears and dressing changes the health care providers, including Perry, received "a smile we will never forget for the rest of our lives."

In compiling this report, we have made every effort to ensure an accurate and complete record of giving to the University of New England from June 1, 2009 to May 31, 2010. Please accept our sincere apologies if we have in any way misrepresented your giving or omitted or incorrectly listed your name.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW ENGLAND STATEMENT OF ACTIVITIES

EXPENSES

YEAR ENDED MAY 31, 2010

REVENUE

YEAR ENDED MAY 31, 2010

Sponsored Programs at UNE

The Report of Philanthropy traditionally includes gifts and grants for unrestricted use or to support specific objectives, such as capital projects, endowed funds or scholarships, etc. But these are not the only external funds that come to the University. Faculty members also receive grants and contracts from federal, state, foundation, and private sources to support research activities, scholarly studies, or training programs. Applications are typically submitted in response to a competitive program announcement or a Request for Application (RFA). These grants usually involve activities or outcomes with accounting and reporting requirements that necessitate ongoing administration, and are therefore not considered gifts.

Most universities with significant research volume have an Office of Sponsored Programs, or OSP, to manage the submission, reporting and proper oversight of these grants. Because of UNE's increase in sponsored activity, an OSP was created at UNE in 2005. The mission of the Office of Sponsored Program is to facilitate the University's goal of becoming a significant research institution by providing faculty with the highest quality research support services, while also protecting the University's interests by reviewing all proposals to external funding agencies, and by initiating and implementing research related policies and procedures, providing training and outreach, and serving as a liaison between the University and its sponsors. The OSP also oversees research compliance at UNE, and administers its Institutional Review Board (IRB) and Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee (IACUC).

Under the overall direction of Timothy Ford, Vice President of Research and Dean of Graduate Studies, the Office of Sponsored Programs and its staff is directed by Nicholas Gere, M.B.A., Director of Research Administration. OSP has made it possible for faculty to greatly increase grant funded activity. In the last year alone, over $8 million in grants have been accepted, as noted below by college and funding agency, including $1.5 million toward completion of the biomedical research labs on the Biddeford Campus from the Maine Technology Institute.

KIRK AND NANCY POND OF CAPE ELIZABETH ARE LONGTIME RESIDENTS OF MAINE WHO HAVE RAISED THEIR FAMILY IN THE STATE AND GIVEN OPPORTUNITIES TO THE CHILDREN OF OTHERS SO THAT THE NEXT GENERATION WILL BE PREPARED TO ENTER THE WORK FORCE READY TO LEAD.

Undergraduate Research at UNE fulfills three important educational obiectives:

- Serves as a culmination of the educational experience by enabling students to synthesize, apply and test acquired skills and knowledge in new ways.
- Provides opportunities to demonstrate students' ability to speak and write about their own work.
- Prepares students for graduate school and professional careers.

arents of a UNE student, the Ponds are supporters of the Undergraduate Summer Research Program. "Mentorship plays a very important role in the lives of young people," said Nancy, an elementary school teacher and principal in Cape Elizabeth for 30 years. Her husband, Kirk, served as president and chief executive officer of Fairchild Semiconductor International, Inc. Together they have identified needs in the state of Maine from an education and work force development perspective and have built an infrastructure to support success.

Students like Iordan Faloon have benefitted from their generosity.

In past years, Jordan spent her summer vacations scooping ice cream in a shop in her hometown of Medway, located near Millinocket in northern Maine. But this past summer Jordan, the daughter of a logger and a nurse, stayed on campus at UNE in Biddeford to participate in the College of Arts and Sciences Undergraduate Summer Research program under the mentorship of Ed Bilsky, a professor in the College of Osteopathic Medicine and the Director of the Center for Excellence in the Neurosciences.

Each summer more than 60 undergraduate students remain on campus and engage in faculty-mentored research matched to their discipline and career interests. The program provides competitive stipends through the Dean's Office in the College of Arts and Science to compensate students who would otherwise earn income from off-campus summer employment.

As a participant in the program, Iordan was able to devote 40 hours a week to her research, much more than the typical eight to 10 hours she works in the lab during the school year. She also had the opportunity to attend lectures by visiting experts related to her major in neuroscience.

"I had more time to read articles and do research on my project in the summer," said Jordan, now in her junior year. Alongside Professor Bilsky, she studied basic mechanisms of pain modulation that will lead to the better treatment of chronic pain. Her summer fellowship was supported by a prestigious fellowship from the American Society for Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics (ASPET) along with a Dean's fellowship from the College of Arts and Sciences.

Jordan's long term goals include medical school and to be a practicing physician in the northern New England area. She will be ready thanks to people like Kirk and Nancy Pond.

MAKE A DIFFERENCE. Forever.

You make a difference in the life of a student when you make a gift to the University of New England. When you establish an endowment, you make a difference forever.

Endowment gifts create a legacy, are invested and are perpetual. They help high-achieving students with more ambition than financial resources, attract senior-level faculty, provide opportunities for student and faculty research, and build and sustain facilities, academic programs and institutes. Endowments are more durable than bricks and mortar and will outlast virtually any other kind of gift. Endowments position the University of New England for the future.

For more information on creating an endowment at the University of New England, contact Scott Marchildon at (207) 221-4230 or smarchildon@une.edu.
