

Liz Funk is a writer who focuses on young women and Generation Y. She frequently write opinion articles and features stories that are published in USA Today, the Christian Science Monitor, Newsday, CosmoGIRL!, the Huffington Post, the New Jersey Record, the Baltimore Sun, theNation.com, YourTango.com, Vibe Vixen magazine, and Girls' Life, among other publications. For two years she wrote a blog about young women's issues for the Albany, NY newspaper the Times Union; before that, she was a columnist at the Altamont Enterprise when she was in high school. She will graduate from Pace University in May with a degree in English; while on campus, she wrote popular sex column for the school newspaper. She is a senior fellow of Young People For/People for the American Way Foundation, she is a member of YPulse's Advisory Board, and she has served on the National Organization for Women Young Feminist Task Force. She was born in 1988 and splits her time between upstate New York, Long Island, and New York City. Supergirls Speak Out is Liz's first book.