

A Pledge to NOT Use Helium Balloons

Eventually helium balloons fall to the ground, polluting land and water, and harming wildlife

Helium is a finite (non-renewable) resource. It's needed in specialized medical and research equipment. Shouldn't we save it for important purposes, and not squander it?

Our office pledges to find other ways to celebrate - and agrees to not use helium balloons.