Women who served in Vietnam to gather at national reunion

Olympia, Wash. - Women who served in the military during the Vietnam War will gather in Olympia, Wash., for a national reunion focusing on public education scheduled for November 11-13, 1999.

According to organizers, the reunion is not intended to be just a party with old friends, but rather is aimed at educating the public about the history of servicewomen in general, and specifically those who served in Vietnam.

Though the majority of American servicewomen who served in Vietnam were nurses, women also served in non-medical roles such as intelligence analysts, supply officers, personnel and payroll clerks, typists and a variety of other support roles.

Organizers are currently in the initial planning stages of the event. They say their aim is to contact more than 1,000 of the 7,500 women who served in the Vietnam War as part of military forces, almost 84 percent of which (6,250) served in medical units.

For more information about the reunion, contact Donna Lowery at (503) 534-0548.

Newsletter Comment:

UPDATE: As you may already know, the reunion committee estimates that over 2,000 women (non-nurses) were in-country. As of January 6, 1999, they have found 414 so far and still have quite a way to go. At the start of their search, they had found only 116. Please continue to pass the word. Also, below is a news article by AP which was forwarded to me concerning this very special reunion:

CONOWINGO, Md. (AP) - Claire Starnes remembers the day in 1971 when she returned to America from Vietnam and was chased through a San Francisco airport by protesters because she was wearing her Army uniform.

"It's like I was ashamed of the uniform, but I wasn't," Ms. Starnes said. "It was a strange feeling."

It was a feeling that didn't sit well with Ms. Starnes.

Now, she has a goal to reunite and honor women veterans at a ceremony in Olympia, Wash., next Veterans Day. She co-founded an organization called Vietnam Women Veterans to help find women who served in Vietnam.

"You must remember how ostracized the Vietnam vets were, and even more so the women," Ms. Starnes said. "Most everyone went their different ways, not telling anyone they had been in Vietnam. A large percentage walked alone all these years, while carrying all the baggage of Vietnam with them. ..."

Ms. Starnes said many of the female veterans need help emotionally and physically.

"With the reunion a reality, we'll be able to offer that help, and it's hoped they'll receive it," she said.

Women served in many capacities in Vietnam. They were stenographers, intelligence officers, advisers and flight controllers.

"I was a photojournalist," Ms. Starnes, a resident of Conowingo, told the Cecil Whig in an interview. "I didn't start out as that. I started out doing communications and administrative work. While I was in Vietnam, I became a photojournalist." Even though women weren't involved in the fighting, Ms. Starnes said she still considers what females went through combat. "I think everybody who was in Vietnam was in combat. There was no front nor rear," she said.

The Vietnam Women Veterans Welcome Home Reunion will take place from Nov. 10-13, 1999, if money permits. Ms. Starnes is planning a four-day event featuring dinners, barbecues and awards ceremonies. She is even hoping to produce a health fair and other clinics.

"The state of Washington is very pro-veteran and they gave us the opportunity to have the reunion there," Ms. Starnes said. The ceremony won't be geared toward the nurses because they've already been recognized. Rather, it will honor the women who enlisted and those who served as staff and line officers.

Organizing the reunion will be difficult. First, finding all the women is a huge undertaking because record-keeping was scanty and the veterans are now spread across the country.

The other obstacle is money. Ms. Starnes estimates the price tag for the event might reach $30,000.

"Right now, we're hoping to keep registration costs down to about $20 to $25 for each individual," Ms. Starnes said. "That will pay for food and stuff."

For Ms. Starnes, and her friend, Pricilla Wilkewitz of Louisiana, the whole process has been a labor of love. The two roomed together in Long Binh, South Vietnam, and have kept in touch over the years.

Ms. Wilkewitz and Ms. Starnes were attending a memorial dedication in Arlington, Va., to Women in Military Service to America, when the idea to hold a reunion came to them. The two exchanged information with a dozen other women who had been in Vietnam. Then Ms. Starnes and Ms. Wilkewitz thought, why not everybody? They hope to find between 1,500 and 2,000 female veterans.

Vietnam Women Veterans can be reached at (800) 745-8908.
