

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Latin American Sport and Gender

SRM 290 (3 credits)

Aimee Vlachos, M.S. | avlachos@une.edu

This course views sport as a social institution and a microcosm of the longer social processes that stage, reinforce, and perpetuate myriad inequalities in society. In this course, we analyze the gendered aspects of sport and the relationships among gender, sexuality, and sport in Latin America. We consider the ways that sport reinforces, and potentially undermines, heteronormativity as well as hegemonic notions of masculinity and femininity. During spring break, you will travel to the Dominican Republic to more closely examine gender and sport in Latin America. You will also engage in a service learning project tied to promoting sport for the women and girls of Latin America.

Students are encouraged to apply for travel scholarships in the Global Education Office.
