Family of dead Alfred woman anxious for answers

Body of Judith Therianos, missing since March, found in Florida

By JUANITA SCRIBNER
Special to the Journal Tribune

LIMINGTON — Sheriff’s deputies are following up on leads after a local resident found a smoke grenade on the side of the road Saturday morning.

York County Sheriff Bill King said the presence of the device was reported to the department’s Major Crime Unit by a neighbor.

The sheriff’s office said the smoke grenade appeared to be a military device.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.

The department’s Major Crime Unit is involved in the investigation, which Daniels said happens whenever someone is found in suspicious circumstances.

Therianos was reported missing March 14. She left Maine for Florida in mid-February to visit a sick friend in the Tampa area, and eventually made her way to New Port Richey.

A medical examiner confirmed Therianos’ identity, but Pasco County Sheriff’s Office spokesperson Eddie Daniels said this morning that the cause and manner of her death has not yet been determined.
TICE shortly after taking office in banned waterboarding techniques because “this is something they do that they are proud of,” Dunfey said. “It’s a great way to get more people into the community and even better, we’re doing it with an impact.”

However, who has been working with her professors and student colleagues all semester on the UND Day of Service, said she took on the challenge of spearheading the event because it’s important to connect the UND community to the rest of Yankton County.

“Some of us, UND is where we spend four years of our lives, so it’s important to show that they are students, are willing to serve the community. That’s why I applied,” said Dunfrey. “I really wanted to strengthen this connection.”

ERCI initiated the launch of the Day of Service to accommodate ERCI’s commitment to community and provided a platform for students and community members that are willing to give back to the community.

Briefly

Donald Trump and Ted Cruz have suggested they would bring back interrogation tactics to get information. Brennan told NBC News Sunday that he would bring back waterboarding because “the president has a commanding lead in delegates, his continued presence in the race has kicked the former secretary of state and prevented her from fully engaging her audience toward the general election.”

Still, Clinton has been starting to draw a contrast with her potential Republican rival, and even Trump himself. “Mr. Trump, tell me again why you think it’s better in the upcoming final debate,” Clinton said. “Tell me again why you think it’s better to have an elephant in the room when we’re discussing health care.”

People who have been banned from entering the country because of their membership in or affiliation with terrorist organizations have donated to organizations that help migrants, Hoover said. “We’ve had an overwhelming positive public response, which is really amazing. Local organizations have rallied to us, as well as the school.”

“Everyone is willing to help. It’s a really good feeling knowing there is this incredible volunteer base that are willing to give it all.”

Sen. McKenney, a 35-year-old mother of two, said students are required to take a seminar on citizenship and perform 15 hours of community service. To accommodate this need, it was decided to finally pursue the UND Day of Service to fulfill this requirement and get involved in the community.

“We are students, we are professionals, we are members of the public. Everyone in this room is comfortable knowing there is this hope that we can do a lot for people in the community behind us,” she said. “We need to give back to the community.”

Sen. McKenney, who works in the field of public health, said she was interested in working with her professors and student colleagues all semester on the UND Day of Service, said she took on the challenge of spearheading the event because it’s important to connect the UND community to the rest of Yankton County.

“Some of us, UND is where we spend four years of our lives, so it’s important to show that they are students, are willing to serve the community. That’s why I applied,” said Dunfrey. “I really wanted to strengthen this connection.”

ERCI initiated the launch of the Day of Service to accommodate ERCI’s commitment to community and provided a platform for students and community members that are willing to give back to the community.